

With 6,200 employees in research, teaching and administration and its unique profile, TU Dortmund University shapes prospects for the future: the interaction between engineering and natural sciences as well as social and cultural studies drives both technological innovations and progress in knowledge and methodology. It is not only the roughly 34,500 students who benefit from this.

The Institute for Music and Musicology in the Faculty of Arts and Sports Sciences at TU Dortmund University is seeking to fill the position of a commencing as soon as possible. The successful candidate will represent the field of “Systematic Musicology” in research and teaching.

Professor (W2) in “Systematic Musicology”

We are looking for a personality with expertise in the systematic musicology of popular music and jazz who is also able to cover the entire breadth of the subject. Experience in music ethnology is an advantage.

Applicants will have published in national and international peer-reviewed journals, have relevant experience in raising third-party funds and be willing to get involved in research alliances and collaborations within and outside of TU Dortmund University. The candidate should hold an excellent doctorate and a habilitation or have an equivalent academic record.

An appropriate contribution to the faculty’s curriculum is expected.

The successful candidate will possess social and leadership skills and be willing to be involved in academic self-governance.

The recruitment requirements are based on § 36 and § 37 HG NRW (law governing universities in NRW).

TU Dortmund University strives to increase the number of women in academic research and teaching and therefore strongly encourages women to apply.

TU Dortmund University is an equal opportunity employer and gives preference to candidates with disabilities if equally qualified.

TU Dortmund University supports the compatibility of work and family life and promotes gender mainstreaming in the university community.
