

With 6,200 employees in research, teaching and administration and its unique profile, TU Dortmund University shapes prospects for the future: the interaction between engineering and natural sciences as well as social and cultural studies drives both technological innovations and progress in knowledge and methodology. It is not only the roughly 34,200 students who benefit from this.

The Faculty of Culture Studies at TU Dortmund University is seeking to fill the position of a commencing as soon as possible. The successful candidate should research and teach a broad range of topics in English Linguistics.

Full Professorship (W 3) in English Linguistics (Multilingualism)

TU Dortmund University is seeking an outstanding individual and established scholar in the field of English Linguistics with a special focus on individual and/or societal multilingualism, who will have published in high-ranked international journals.

A track-record in acquiring external funding is desirable.

Applicants should contribute to interdisciplinary collaborative research projects within TU Dortmund University and in research networks, especially with a focus on multilingualism.

An adequate contribution to the faculty's curriculum (classes largely in English, but partly also in German) is expected.

The successful candidate should display social and leadership skills and be willing to contribute to academic self-administration.

Hiring requirements are based on § 36 HG of the state of North Rhine-Westphalia.

TU Dortmund University strives to increase the number of women in academic research and teaching and therefore strongly encourages women to apply.

Disabled candidates with the appropriate qualifications will be given preference.

TU Dortmund University supports the compatibility of work and family life and promotes gender mainstreaming in the university community.

Meaningful applications, including the usual documents (CV, list of publications, if available teaching evaluations, etc.), should be sent by both regular mail and electronically (in pdf-format) by 14.12.2017 to the following address
